“An experience as much for the mind as the taste buds.”

– CHEF MASSIMO BOTTURA

– CHEF IGNACIO MATTOS

“I think the best evenings are when we have messages, things that make us think, but we can also laugh and enjoy each other’s company.”

– JANE GOODALL

WITHIN the rhythmic scores from Miles Davis, the traipse of falling in love is akin to uncovering a sparkle of creation.

When we wander into the rapture of boredom, let us not forget that our pulsating orbs of exploration will mesh with the feverish moments of the present. Allow our clothes of comfort to deteriorate and maximize our potential for uncertainty. For where there is uncertainty, creation resides. We as a future-oriented populous must bring forth the education of global citizens and fight for the justification of humanism. In this triumphant time of social progression, hyper-connectivity, and grass root pursuits, let us remain sane as we engage in fertile, shared conversation, gastronomic forkfuls, and the reciprocity of ideas.
